DECIDEDLY COOL FOR THE SEASON .- The Chronicle of this morning under the heading A Day of excitement " save __

ing the publication of all the news of consequence that was reliable respecting this movement in the "Extra Chronicle," and numerous etatements made in the extras of our neighbors of the Star and Republican there were also many rumors, &c. &c.

Now considering that the Chronicle's extras

were made up of the news of the Star's extras, this talk about our own "statements" and its creliable news" is about the coolest thing of a But yes, the Chronicle had one bit of exclusive news:-the following to which that paper gave the prominence of double leads: "A Rebel Scouting Party in the City.—The sermorning to Superintendent Webb that five mounted men, whom he was satisfied were rebel ecouts, came past the police station, and, after a short time devoted to observations of the vicinity, disappeared. "A stranger dressed in a grey cost and black pants, supposed to be a rebel scout and mounted on a fine horse, was also observed by other parties. He appeared to be making a tour of observation." This is a serious charge to make against the In it is a serious charge to make against the loyalty and efficiency of Superintendent Webb and his force, that they permitted rebel scours, knowing them to be such, to make leisurely noises of observation directly under the noses of the police, and then to move off unmolested. It is also a grave charge to make against our military anthorities, that against our military authorities, that squads of rebel scouts are permitted to ride through our lines at will to make tours of observation. But we take it that nobody was mislead by such a silly and transparent bit of sensational writing designed to sell a few extras. The fact is that the history of American journalism does not show

another instance of a paper-either from design or inadvertently—so persistently gulling its readers as does the Chronicle. Monkey Run correspondence, Saltpetre Cave stories and hair-elevating yarns of rebel raiders in buckram, (gray) perambulating the streets of Washington, and such like "news" of Chronicle manufacture, have made that paper the laughingstock of the country.

A SUPPOSED REBEL FLAG-On Saturday last, Capt. Camp, A. Q. M. at the Soldiers' Rest, received information that certain parties in the city were preparing a flag for presentation to the advance guard of the rebels when they entered the city. Lieut. Gemmill, of the V. R. C. stationed at that point, proceeded to the house designated, and there found a fine fing, of which the following is a description. which he took possession of:-Length, three feet; width , about 18 inches; with a white field about 18 inches square, on which are two narrow blue silk stripes running from corner to corner, each stripe having thirteen stars over it (making twenty six in all), with two stripes, the upper one red, and the other blue. Those having charge of it said that it was intended for a division of the Sons or Cadets of Tempersonce, but the officers not being conversant with the emblems and flags used in that order. took charge of it, and have referred the matter to the proper authority.

RAILROAD COMMUNICATION UNINTERRUPT-BD.-The train which left Baltimore at ten o'clock this morning arrived on time, the road at that hour being free and no rebels are reported to have been near it. At noon the telegraph communication of the railroad company between here and Philadelphia was open, although at that time the wires of the American Company north of Baltimore were not at work. Some of the passengers by this train report that early this morning small bands of rebel cavalry were seen in the neighborhoods of Cockeysville and Govanstown, north of Baltimore.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONISTS BAGGED .- Yesterday morning a number of gentlemen, to avoid the best and dust of the city, made a visit to the Prince George side of the Anacostia to spend the day in the cool shade of the oaks. Unfortunately they were bagged by the military, who seemed to think the party were loitering around after a suspicious sort and detained until morning. Sunday visits beyond the District lines are not safe at present.

THE NAVIGATION OF THE RIVER .- Pilots and others navigating the river find considerable difficulty in getting up the river, in consequence of the buoys at Lower Cedar Point having been moved—one entirely, and the other about four miles from its original position. There are one or more vessels ashore there constantly.

STATE OF THE THERMOMETER .- At Franklin & Co.'s, opticians, No. 244 Pennsylvania avenue, the thermometer stood to-day at 1 o'clock, 88 in the shade and 112 in the sun.

On Sunday morning 16th inst., JOHN FRANCIS,
